50,000 different models, 5,000 patents. The 350 year-old history of corkscrews couldn't be more twisted. In fact it was a British invention which was first mentioned by the Royal Society in 1661. A book with plenty of stories about crazy collectors and the necessity of opening bottles. The co-author himself, Bernhard Maurer, owns Germany's only corkscrew museum and is a member of the international Corkscrew Collectors Society.

National German Winner (Wine books, Category illustration and photography)

And 2011 in Paris: World best winebook (Gourmand World Cookbook Awards, same category)
